WEST GLENDALE

Mr. and Mrs. Page are entertaining relatives and friends from the East.

Mrs. Laura Scamman and daughter, Mrs. J. L. Russ, of 1229 Milford street, spent the day in Long Beach visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. Muldry has sold his home on Ivy and Pacific streets and expects to move to Los Angeles where he is having a handsome residence built.

The large tract of land on Fourth street near San Fernando road, formerly in strawberries, is being cultivated and set out in Orange trees.

Mr. High Blue has disposed of his house and lot on Milford street and is now residing on Woolcott street, where he has purchased a new home.

H. M. Gorin, who has been visiting his sisters, Mrs. Scannon and Mrs. Elliott, for the past two weeks, left Tuesday morning for Portland, Oregon.

A jolly party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Wolfe and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Klein enjoyed a horseback spin around the valley, also Eagle Rock and vicinity on Saturday last.

P. A. Penhollow's new home on Ivy street west of Columbus avenue is nearing completion and when finished will be classed among the many fine residences that line this beautiful street.

Mrs. Herbert Kennedy of Central avenue has returned from a trip to Palo Alto and other northern cities. She will remain in Glendale until the close of the present school term, then, together with her little daughter, Mildred, will make an extended visit to her old home in Maine.

That West Glendale has grown some is shown from the following item: The Little Mission at corner of Fifth and Pacific has outgrown its present building and will soon have to build a more commodious structure. Less than a year ago there was a mere handful of Sunday school scholars, where now there are between 60 and 70 in attendance, and about 70 church members enrolled. Rev. Morrison is the pastor of this little church, and great credit is given him for its upbuilding.

Services every Sunday morning and evening, at which everybody is welcome.

The Ladies Aid of this little Mission will give a "bonnet and apron fair" on Tuesday next, and a "meat pie" supper from 6 p. m. until all the hungry mouths have been fed. Twenty-five cents will be charged for the supper. Home-made candies will be on sale, for all those who have a "sweet-tooth." Everybody invited.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The spring vacation of two weeks will commence on Friday, March 25.

Two more new scholars entered this week.

The West Glendale first team has challenged the Sixth street team for a game of baseball this afternoon, to be played on the West Glendale diamond.

Most all the pupils reported "down and out" with the measles have returned to their school duties.

Mrs. Nanno Woods of the Open-Air kindergarten, paid a delightful visit to the school on Monday, and gave a very interesting talk on the customs and manners of the schools in Ireland, also entertained the children with a very humorous account of the "Origin of St. Patrick's day." As this talented lady is a native of the Emerald Isle, it is needless to say that she is well versed in anything pertaining to that country.

A GROWING ESTABLISHMENT.

A NEWS reporter called at the Glendale Steam Laundry the other day and was surprised to note the improvements that have been made there and the very noticeable increase in business. The present proprietor, Mr. Howard, took over the establishment three months ago and it is easy to credit his statement that the business has doubled up in that time. A new mangle, weighing eight tons and worth something like $2000, has been installed. A second steam drying room has been added, thus doubling the capacity. The clothes are run into these rooms on racks, remain about 30 minutes and come out thoroughly dried. Another washing machine has been added, making three now in use

BANQUET TO BASEBALL BOYS.

BY ALBERT MARPLE.

It was little wonder that the Glendale city baseball team had it put all over them in last Saturday's game—they attended a banquet the night before. The wonder is that they crossed the home plan with a single tally. It was noticeable during the game that they occasionally gave vent to that "all in" feeling, and the majority of them looked the part.

The people along Brand boulevard were wakened out of a long peaceful sleep when the baseball boys congregated in that neighborhood. It was shortly before 8 o'clock that the boys put in their appearance, and from that time until they entered Wood's hotel, it was more than evident that something was about to take place.

In the parlor the boys waited for their manager, E. B. Valentine, who was, by the way, a half-hour late. During the wait the company was entertained by ragtime selections by Roy Roberts. When the manager arrived the fireworks began, and a short time later the band of high-spirited youngsters were gathered about the banquet table ready to do their worst to whatever might be put before them. And it might be well to add that they did it, with vengeance.

At the outset there seemed to be a little timidity as to who would break the ice and pounce upon the things prepared, but this was soon swept away, when the manager settled down to business. Valentine went after them "ere things just as he does music—with a wag of his head and a swing of the baton—which proved to be a hay fork. The boys then fell in line and silence reigned for a spell on half an hour, occasionally interrupted by a grunt of satisfaction or a word of encouragement from the manager of the toastmaster. "Red" Perkins broke out now and then with unusual sounds that gave evidence that success was coming his way—but the boys were quiet. They were busy.

The menu was as follows: Ham sandwiches, lettuce mayonnaise sandwiches, potato salad, olives, pickles, water cress, radishes, pie a la mode, cake, fruit, nuts and coffee. Is it any wonder that the spell of hilarity was hushed for a very short period?

After everything had disappeared except the pie a la mode, Toastmaster H. P. Coker, who by the way, was formerly bargain counter or society editor of the Los Angeles Record, managed to rise to his feet and start fireworks No. 2. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Coker is a former Recordite, he gave the boys before him more solid, sensible advice than they have been treated to for many a day. Every time he spoke the boys received something to think about—some instruction, which, if followed, will soon put them far in advance of the modern clan, and make for them an unusually bright future. It was a typical newspaperman's speech, every sentence was straight to the point, with no unnecessary rambling. The following excerpts are from his talk:

"Boys, always strive to live honest and straightforward lives. You are nothing but a bunch of kids now, but some day you'll be men, so try to live so that you will be honorable men—men that the community in which you live, can trust, and can always look up to. Boost your town. No particular part, but the town in general. Put your whole heart and soul in your game, but don't fight. Stick by your colors, and be in the action always. But above all things, boys, boost Glendale fearlessly and at all times, and be honest and truthful."

The toastmaster then called up "Flip" Flores to respond to the toast, "From the Bleachers," but stagefright had taken possession of the graceful second baseman. The following toasts were then called for and responded to:

"Our Team," Nelson Sprinkle; "Baseball Situation," Harly Lynch; "The Trials of the Poor Umpire," Mr. J. H. McCormick; "Baseball Brains," Roy Roberts; "Baseball and the Press," Albert Marple; "Baseball," Wilbur Chapman.

At this stage, "Red" Perkins, who has the reputation of managing more teams, umpiring more games, starting more leagues, and settling more squabbles than any man in Southern California, was called upon to answer to the toast, "The Trials of a Captain," and he responded very eloquently. In a brief way he told of the baseball situation in this section, complimenting the boys on the record they had made, but ending by assuring the boys that he would put them up against harder teams in the future than they had met in the past.

By this time the pie a la mode had entirely disappeared—also the mammoth number of sandwiches which had been plentifully placed before the manager's plate. When called upon to give his experience as a manager of the Glendale baseball team, Mr. Valentine, with assistance, rose, and resting quite heavily upon the back of the chair, began. He spoke for about five minutes, sometimes hastily, sometimes in a far-away tone, which showed that the sandwiches had had the desired effect. It must have been the sandwiches, for nothing stronger was served.

The banquet ended with a grand hurrah, which caused Mr. Haviland to wish that he had turned down the offer to feed the multitude.

During the evening the service tendered by those in charge was of the finest, and everything was more than satisfactory.

FAREWELL PARTY TO MR. AND MRS. RUNKLE.

Last Tuesday evening the members of the choir of St. Marks church met at the residence of Rev. and Mrs. Runkle, who are about to leave Glendale and go to San Bernardino where they will continue their work. A special program was rendered consisting of enjoyable musical selections and entertaining readings, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed as was the jolly time spent around the coffee pot afterward. Just before leaving the choir members presented a parting gift to host and hostess, consisting of a solid silver salver having the inscription, "Rev. and Mrs. Runkle, St. Marks Church, Glendale 1910." Mr. Runkle in behalf of himself and wife gave feeling expression to their thanks and endeavored to express the same to each and every member of the church who so ably assisted him during his stay in Glendale. After a parting song given by the choir, all joined in the singing of some of the old familiar songs and then said "au revoir."

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during the sickness, death and burial of our darling boy. Especially those who furnished the singing and flowers.

MR. AND MRS. CLAUD BERGER.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. A. McDonald and family desire to express their thanks to their many friends for their expressions of sympathy and kindness during their late bereavement.

SPORTING NEWS

Announcement for all ball games will be found on Page 3, under Amusement Advertising.

Walter Lennox, a Glendale boy, is captain of the U. S. C. track team and is one of the best hurdlers in California college circles, having won the 120 and 220-yard hurdles against Stanford at the recent track meet. He is a member of the Sophomore class.

Hundreds of biplanes and multi-planes and other aircraft in miniature are being built for the annual kite tournament on April 9 to be held on the Arlington boulevard tract at the end of the Washington street car line extension. This tournament is open to all boys in grades below the high school who have been in attendance during the past year. The exhibits will be kites, aeroplanes, balloons, suspended figures, etc.

Mr. Valentine has succeeded in obtaining a game with the Varsity ball team of the U. S. C., which will be played next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 sharp, March 23. All of the Varsity dates were taken for Saturday, and in order to secure this star attraction, Mr. Valentine was compelled to book it as a mid-week event in the baseball world. Don't forget the date and give the Varsity boys the biggest crowd of the season and the best time.

Last week was a busy week for our baseball team, as two games occurred, Glendale City beating Glendale High on Thursday, March 10, the score being 5 to 0. Battery for Glendale City, Rice and Buttrick; Glendale High, Benson and McNutt. Quite a crowd was present, especially the girls from the high school who hoped against hope that their boys would show up the city chaps.

But Rice was in his old-time form and Benson did not have the necessary cunning displayed in previous games, and the city boys slammed him for nine hits and the high school boys only gathered five scattered hits off of Rice.

But Glendale City boys got theirs last Saturday when the Union Well Supply Co. beat us 9 to 2 before a large crowd and broke Glendale's winning streak of all seven games won. The boys must have been fed too sumptuously the night before by their manager at Wood's hotel to play fast ball, so while the boys lost their first game, Mr. Valentine is more than repaid by the way they enjoyed themselves Friday evening. No drinking, carousing and dissipating, but just a clean, wholesome time by the best bunch of clean, good boys in the valley. Hats off to our boys.

Next Saturday our boys play the Union Hardware & Metal Co., one of the fastest teams in Los Angeles. Come out and help us win back our prestige.

Following is the line-up:

L. Brand	catcher	Buttrick
Goldwater	pitcher	Rice
Caudry	first base	Davenport
Drown	second base	Sprinkle
Owens	third base	Fackler
Menzer	shortstop	Flores
Thompson	center field	Hilliard
Reinhardt	right field	McNutt
Dempick	substitute	Benson

GLENDALE-BURBANK TRACK MEET.

A track and field meet will be held between Glendale and Burbank High Schools tomorrow (Saturday) morning, March 19, on the Glendale High School grounds, at 10 a. m. sharp. Considerable rivalry is indulged in by these two schools, and there should be a great crowd out to see the events. The Burbank boys will be entertained by our boys at the Glendale hotel for dinner, and immediately afterward at 1 p. m. on the Glendale baseball park the Burbank ball team will play Glendale City Second Team as the first of a double header, and the Union Hardware and Metal Co. vs. Glendale City first team at 3 p. m., making an interesting day of sports for all.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

Mr. G. H. Barager has sold a recently completed bungalow on Adams street south of Sixth, to D. D. Griffin of Los Angeles, who will occupy the house with his family in a short time.

New buildings are going up as follows:

E. K. Daniels, Ninth and Damasco, a $1700 bungalow.

Eastern Building Co. for G. S. Larned, on Mary street between First and Second, cost $2500.

Home Building Co. for Sresovich, owner, a $1500 bungalow.

A. G. Mossholder, owner and builder, Ivy street between Central and Columbus, cost $1500.

E. L. Fulton, Fifth and Orange streets, $2500.

H. M. Hess, Fifth and Orange streets, $1500.

The Peerless Realty Co. of Glendale will erect four six-room cottages on Louise street and Fairview avenue, at a most of about $1600 each. Franklin Wilson contemplates the erection of a modern residence on Central avenue near Second street.

Clubhouse—Tropico—The Tropico Library building association has purchased a site at the corner of Blanche and Cypress avenues upon which they will erect the long contemplated library building. Sufficient funds are available for an immediate start, and it is hoped to dedicate the building, free from debt, in a short time.

Stanley S. Frentz, owner; E. L. Fulton, contractor; a residence on lot 24, block 63, Campbell tract, on Milford street, near Central avenue; cost $2150.

Ernest H. Owen reports the sale of a lot located at the northwest corner of Central avenue and Second street to Dr. R. F. Wallace; consideration $1175; also an exchange of ten acres located in the San Fernando valley owned by J. R. White, Jr., for the home of Margaret Cook, situated at the northwest corner of Louise and Second streets, Glendale. Consideration $12,000.

Rev. J. F. Moody has sold his place at 217 Orange street to C. C. Reed, father of C. E. Reed of Brand boulevard, and will move on the property.

Charles H. Darling is putting up a house on Oak street which will cost about $1500.

George Garrett is erecting a home on Vine street, which will be modern in every respect and cost in the neighborhood of $1800.

H. J. Webster is remodeling his home at 515 Vine street.

Soon after April 1st there will be a great development in the San Fernando valley where the big ranches on the west side are opened up for the building of suburban homes. The southern boundary of the tract is four miles from the Los Angeles city limits, connected by the Calhoun pass road. The three ranches, Van Nuys, Sheep and Kester, comprise 640 acres each.

The plan of the promoters is such as to encourage a high class of improvements. Good roads are to be a feature of the work of development. In connection with this latter feature we are informed that Street Supt. Sinclair of Glendale has received a flattering offer from this development company, to take a position with them as overseer of the road work on the ranches. The salary offered is largely in excess of what his present position pays, but we hope is not large enough to induce him to accept, as his continued good services are required right here.

Mr. W. H. Ward of East Fourth street has sold a lot in the Watson and Nelson tract, opposite the Fourth St. School, to Monroe Hunter, who has put up and occupied a small cottage thereon. Mr. Ward has moved his old house on Fourth street to an adjoining lot, putting a concrete foundation under it, and making other improvements which will convert it into a double apartment house. Mr. Ward will soon build on one of his other lots a home residence.

P. E. O. ELECTS OFFICERS.

At the meeting of the P. E. O. of Glendale held at the home of Mrs. Anna Goss at her home on Fifth street, Monday evening, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

GLENDALE, CAL., MARCH 18, 1910

Mr. Roosevelt (sounds dreadfully commonplace, doesn't it) has reached civilization after a year's absence and shows that his mental faculties have not degenerated, by refusing to discuss politics. After he has talked things over with "Will" in the white house, we fancy that some lucky reporter will get a story worth printing.

We have received a copy of the Eagle Rock Sentinel, published by Otto Schroeder, and welcome the new publication into the fold. The initial number gives promise of being a success, financially and otherwise. The Eagle Rock section is growing in a phenomenal manner and the Sentinel gets in just in time to avoid attempting to fill the "long-felt want."

In one of the daily "reform" journals that we read religiously, there appears as a reading notice without any advertising designation, the advice to buy Dr. Somebody's Something-or-other for the kidneys, one of the inducements being the promise that it will "prevent the bad effects following the use of liquor, wine or beer." It is one of the numerous cases where the reform editor and proprietor is conveniently ignorant of the action of his wicked business manager who catches the trade of the short hairs while the editorial columns minister to the truly good.

On March 23d in Los Angeles before Commissioner Prouty of the Interstate Commerce commission the hearing of the case of the citrus fruit growers against the railroads to prevent their raising the transcontinental rate on lemons, will take place. The present rate is $1.00 per hundred pounds, and the railroads attempted to make it $1.15 after the increase in duty was made by the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. The carrying companies were temporarily enjoined, however, and now the case will be tried on its merits. Lemon growers are naturally interested in the outcome. Upon the result depends largely the question as to whether Senator Flint did the growers a service in securing from his friend Aldrich an increase in duty, or whether (unintentionally) he handed them a gold brick. An increase of tariff is only a bird in the bush at best, but an increase in freight charges is a dead sure loss.

The Los Angeles city council is evidently making an honest effort to frame an ordinance which will diminish the evil done by the saloons, but find themselves opposed by two extremes, the prohibitionists and the saloonkeepers. We suggest to the Los Angeles city authorities that until they can do something better, they police the saloons that are the greatest offenders, and make impossible the maintenance of such places as the saloon on the corner of First and Los Angeles streets, from which drunken men may be seen emerging almost any hour every afternoon and night. Drunken men are certainly more in evidence than policemen in that neighborhood. Has the experiment of a rock pile with bread and water ever been tried upon the habits of such places? It would perhaps jar the nerves of sentimentalists to see the "victims of the drink habit" treated so unfeelingly, but would produce results. Taking the license from a place that caters to drunkards so obviously, is also a remedy within the power of the authorities. It is, however, much easier to allow the whole matter to be made the football of politics and the subject of much platitudinizing on general principles than to apply remedies in the concrete.

Judge Works, president of the city council of Los Angeles, has put through the council a resolution giving the railroad companies within the city six months' notice of the intention of the city to compel the said corporations to live up to the terms of their franchises. Among the requirements which have been disregarded are those limiting the companies to the carrying of passengers only; the providing of a sufficient number of cars and the paying of streets along their tracks. The penalty prescribed in the franchises issued is a forfeiture of the franchise and notice is given that this penalty will be enforced. Citizens having a proper regard for law and justice can only wish that the city of Los Angeles may be able to compel corporations to abide by their agreements precisely as the individual is compelled to do.

The argument that the service rendered by the railroads is of such inestimable value to the community, that they should be permitted to do as they please, is fallacious and subversive of all law. Everybody is willing to give to the interurban electric railroad and the other systems that have been such potent factors in building up Southern California, all honor and credit due within the law, but when they ask for more, it is time for the people to ask themselves whether the price to be paid for this development may not be too great.

THE WEATHER.

The Los Angeles Express republished from the old files of that paper twenty-five years ago, on Saturday last, an extract in regard to the weather then, as follows: "Light showers fell yesterday, the first rain that has fallen here since Christmas." This seems to indicate a season from January to the middle of March, identical to the present one. The light rainfall of last Sunday night was the only one since early in January, but, as shown by the above extract, this is not at all unprecedented. Some of our best seasons have been those in which there was a light rainfall after New Years, but distributed so as to do the most possible good. This last rainfall of a quarter of an inch or so has been of great benefit and if followed within a short time by considerable cloudy and showery weather with an absence of drying winds, will yet make an ideal prosperous season. There is now an excellent prospect for a heavy yield of deciduous fruit and berries and field and garden crops should be good. The winter has been all that the visitors from the frigid East can reasonably demand and the proportion of them that will remain and "grow up with the country," may reasonably be expected to be large.

A QUESTION OF BUTTONS.

One of those fearful and wonderful "special dispatches," which ever and anon, like an unexpected comet flashes across the everyday horizon of the of the newspapers world startling and yet enthralling all observers with its lurid message, informs us that Dr. Luther H. Galkof of New York in an address to the Y. M. C. A. somewhere, has discovered a remedy for the growing divorce evil. The learned doctor says: "A man can jump into his garments in a jiffy, while a woman needs help in dressing, and cannot button her dress up the back—this causes a man to feel his superiority and results in discord in the home." And the learned gentleman suggests that man's clothes be made more complicated so that the inequality of the sexes may be removed!

Now is not that simple? Is it not most remarkable that none of us had discovered this before, but have been, on the contrary, striving for sartorial simplicity, with the mistaken idea that when it was finally attained, we should be just as nearly perfect as it is worth while to be? Well, we shall have to begin over again, discouraging though it may be; we must have peace in the home at any cost! All men lovers of harmony who have been, metaphorically speaking, all puffed up over the fact that they didn't have to call upon their wives to fasten a button on their—well to fasten a button between their shoulder blades, will please reverse their garments at once. It's easy enough to put the buttons behind and according to the high authority quote, is a duty we owe to the gentler sex whose inferiority consists merely in a matter of buttons!

"Man serving term in county jail undergoes operation for appendicitis and rallies nicely." This is the caption on a local item in one of our great dailies. The country editor and his productions have from time immemorial, or thereabouts, been the butt of the smart writers on the metropolitan press. They have and still do get a vast amount of pleasure out of local items that deal with such important events as "Neighbor Smith's brown cow has a blue calf;" "Farmer Jones was in town today and reports the crop of turnips affected by the root knot;" "Widow Simpson's sprained ankle took a turn for the worse in getting out of a buggy last Sunday," etc. And they do, very properly add to the gaiety of nation. But the city journalist makes slips as frequent at least as great Homer's nods, and the quoted caption appeals to us. The county jail patient rallied "nicely;" now was not that real considerate on his part? How un-nice it would have been had he rallied un-nicely! The mere suggestion of a county jail inmate's possibilities of unniceness, makes us shiver.

We referred some time ago to a striking niceness of phraseology indulged in by a nice reporter in this same paper who told its readers that an assistant district attorney had broken one of his "limbs," leaving us with a longing entirely unsatisfied to be informed as to whether the broken limb was an appendix to his body or to a pepper tree in his front yard! Young lady of the great daily, your femininity does you infinite credit and it adds somewhat to the joy of us! Why should not a county jail prisoner rally nicely? Nice is a nice word indeed; perish the churl who would suggest its unniceness, and how can a nice thing be described without saying it's nice—even when in the county jail! Sure enough—how!

GET BUSY.

The highway commission has advertised for bids for road work on that portion of the system between Glendale and Pasadena. Of course, this does not mean that the highway will be built at once, possibly not for a year or two, but it looks nevertheless as if it would be completed long before Sixth street is opened and improved to meet it. We understand that condemnation proceedings have been begun, but none of the thirty or forty summonses in connection with the case have been served.

There may be some special and particular cause for the delay in the case of this street, but if there is not, we hope to see the trustees and the city attorney push the matter to an issue at once. The opening and improving of this thoroughfare connecting the eastern and western limits of our city, ought to have a stimulating effect upon the property owners of the East Side particularly, and arouse them to a sense of the responsibility resting upon them for the opening up of other roads in that vicinity.

The plan of the highway commission also contemplates the construction of a road to the northern limits of our city at the point where Verdugo road and Glendale avenue come together. We have not heard that anything has been done by the city authorities and property owners toward the continuance of this branch of the highway system. The condition of Glendale avenue north of First street is a disgrace to a city that prides itself on good streets, and this thoroughfare should no longer be neglected. If the business men of our city wish travel from the La Cañada section to be diverted into the center of the city, they should take up this matter with the trustees and see that Glendale avenue is put in passable condition. On the other hand, if the property owners along Verdugo road wish the increased travel which the completion of the highway from the north is sure to bring, they should exert themselves to get that road in proper condition to attract it.

THE LINCOLN-ROOSEVELT CANDIDATES.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt party, through a half-dozen of the leaders, has chosen as candidates for the nomination for governor and lieutenant governor, respectively, Hiram Johnson of San Francisco, and A. J. Wallace of Los Angeles. Both are men of good repute and ability, but neither, we believe, has had legislative experience, nor held public office. Mr. Wallace's experience as a city councilman excepted. A reputation for ability and honesty is certainly essential in aspirants for the highest positions in the state, but it does not raise a candidate noticeably above his fellows; as notwithstanding the opinions of pessimists to the contrary, ability and honesty are not so rare as to render their possessions conspicuous or qualify them for public place. Mr. Johnson would be a much stronger candidate if he had a public record of services performed toward which he might point with pardonable pride. There are a number of men in sympathy with the platform on which Mr. Johnson stands who have such public records and who, we believe, would have made stronger candidates in the estimation of the people. Ex-Governor Pardee or former State Senator C. M. Belshaw, are two who may be mentioned. Mr. Wallace has some advantage over Mr. Johnson in this respect. His work on the city council of Los Angeles commended him very highly to the people and he would probably measure up well to the requirements of presiding officer of the senate, the performance of which duty is all that devolves upon a lieutenant governor. Now that the executive committee of the Lincoln-Roosevelt have settled the question of whom they shall support for the two offices above named, we imagine them wrestling with the equally serious problem of the selection of a candidate for United States senator and shall watch the outcome with interest; particularly so as it now seems pretty certain that Senator Flint, will, after all, be a candidate for re-election.

AN INTERESTING CHAPTER IN RECENT HISTORY.

To one who likes to get at the foundation of things, the mere description of the battle is not satisfying, he wants to know what the war is about, he is more interested in the invisible power that stands behind the soldiers and impels them to deeds of daring. And in the affairs of state and in great international movements which sometimes result in changing the map of a country, there are always interesting chapters of secret history which would well be worth the telling, but they are very rarely told in their entirety. It was about two years ago that Europe was seriously shaken up and war for a time seemed more than a possibility, when it was announced that Austria had declared the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina to that empire. The outrage upon the people of these two little principalities was so outrageous, that the authorities in order to place themselves in a favorable position in the eyes of the world, resorted to desperate means to manufacture sympathy for their action. To do this, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, who seems to have been principally responsible for the act of spoliation, secured the services of a respected historian, Dr. Friedjung, who produced (probably being imposed upon) a lurid story of an alleged grand conspiracy in Belgrade having for its object the dismemberment of the Austro-Hungarian empire. The story implicated the Servian government, the alleged purpose being the formation of a Servian empire. The story was supported by alleged original documents said to have been surreptitiously taken from the Servian archives and from the files of a secret organization pledged to this high and mighty object. As the action of Austria was a most flagrant breach of the provisions of the treaty of Berlin, it can readily be seen that the learned professor's discovery was of immense importance, as the establishment of its truth would justify the action of Austria. The charges were duly published to the world, and included the names of several of the alleged conspirators, certain Croatian deputies. These accused gentlemen promptly brought suit for libel against Dr. Friedjung and an editor who had given currency to the tale of the conspiracy. The suits came to trial and the learned doctor's evidence vanished like the snow flake on the river. "It was shown that a document represented to have been photographed from a paper abstracted from the records of the foreign office at Belgrade was worthless because of an unforeseen numerical blunder." The reproduction in evidence was numbered 2000 while it was shown that the last document in the file bore the number 1040. Then it was proved that the president of the secret society was in Berlin under surveillance of the police at the time that Dr. Friedjung's story required him to be in Servia. The result was that the learned doctor withdrew his two most important pieces of evidence and refused to guarantee the authenticity of the others. The deputies accepted this admission and withdrew their case. The end of the case is not yet in sight as the Servian government proposes to publish to the world an exposition of the methods employed by the Austrian authorities in the affair.

HEALTH INSPECTORS TRACE MIGRATIONS OF TYPHOID BACILLUS.

Two typhoid epidemics occurring simultaneously in different parts of California are traced by state and local health officers to migrations of the disease germs in surface water, and also to popular erroneous theories in regard to drinking from streams or ditches.

In fly-time the typhoid bacillus most often makes its way from person to person on buzz machines that have navigated the air since the week before Adam. But since the frost put a ban on flies last fall the disease germs find the streams and the canals that thread California the most likely means of travel.

State germ-trailers find that both epidemics occur where water supplies have been polluted by the sewer-discharges of careless or uninformed municipalities. One sorely afflicted community in northern California pipes water from a reservoir fed by a long, uncemented ditch. Until recently this ditch mingled waters with a small creek which receives the sewer discharge of a mountain town. The lay of the land further up the ditch indicates that it received the surface wash from two construction camps and a big Chinese rookery during the storms of last month.

So far the health officers are unable to trace any of the epidemic to bedridden typhoid fever patients, and it is thought that "carriers" are the source of the outbreaks. No one knows who or where the typhoid carriers of California are. But it is known that about one out of every four persons who have had typhoid continues to discharge millions of typhoid fever germs with the daily wastes of the body for several weeks or months or even years.

When discharged from the human body the typhoid bacillus finds life a hard scuffle and dies without multiplying, unless it can make its way to breeding grounds in the alimentary canal of another human being. It is only under favorable conditions of moisture and shade that it manages to live apart from its host for six months. It can live in water several weeks. Health officers who are investigating

Your Checks are Receipts

"Pay as you go" is an excellent maxim provided you "pay-by-check." It's foolish to carry money on the person, except for the smallest purchases, and incidentals, for aside from the care and inconvenience there is always the danger of theft or loss.

But with a check-book of this bank in your pocket the inconvenience and worry is eliminated. You write out a check for the exact amount of each purchase, your check-stub is a record for reference and the check itself will later be returned to you by the bank and may be retained as a receipt.

ing those outbreaks of typhoid fever find that many dangerous fallacies exist in regard to drinking water. This time of year people are found using water that they would not think of tasting in the hot summer months when it has a foul taste and smell from the decaying of the comparatively harmless algae. Unboiled or unfiltered ditch water is a dangerous beverage at any season, but especially so in the winter when it is apt to be polluted by surface drainage. So far as contracting typhoid fever is concerned, water from a foul barnyard pool may be safer than the seemingly pure stream that has caught the underground seepage from the premises of a "carrier" or a typhoid patient.

GLENDAL, CAL., MARCH 18, 1910

CELESTIAL PHOTOGRAPHY.

To an appreciative audience at Symphony hall, under the auspices of the Southern California Academy of Sciences, Professor G. W. Ritchey discoursed Monday evening on "Celestial Photography With Refracting and Reflecting Telescopes." The learned gentleman gave a luminous description of his work with the great sixty-inch reflector at the Mount Wilson observatory during the past year, prefacing his lecture with a short description of the old telescopes of the refractor type and comparing them with the newer reflectors and showing the great advantages possessed by the latter, both in power and rapidity. As a striking instance of this he showed a photograph of a nebula which was taken by Professor Bond in 1852 which occupied 100 nights, and which even then was only an indistinct blur, in comparison with the beautiful and well-defined photo of the same taken with the Mount Wilson reflector in only three hours.

Prof. Ritchey said there were three great inventions which had advanced astronomy to a marvellous degree of perfection, viz: the telescope, which enables us to see distant objects, the spectroscopic which informed us of their constitution and chemical composition, and the photographic camera which supplemented and extended the other two. We are all familiar with the telescope and more or less acquainted with its principle. The spectroscopic is not so well-known and is moreover an instrument of somewhat recent invention; it extends our powers of observation in such a marvellous manner as to appear to the initiated almost magical. The photographic art is also familiar to all, but its application to astronomy is quite modern. In the learned professor's opinion stellar photography is almost in its infancy. "By its means a record of the heavens is constantly taken and can be studied at leisure, and stored away for future reference; it can be directed to any part of the sky, or to any particular object in the sky at any time. Suppose, for instance, a new star appears on a photographic plate. It is instantly detected, and the next night another photo will be taken and a comparison will show if it has moved or not, and might disclose a new planet, or a new comet. Again, a photo taken say, twenty-five years ago, compared with one of the same region, or star cluster, taken this year, might reveal changes in the relative position of the group which would lead to most interesting discoveries, and so assist us to unravel the mystery of the star depths."

One of the greatest advantages of photography for astronomical purposes is its high penetrating power. The most powerful telescopes in the world cannot reveal half as many stars as can be caught by the sensitive camera, which, the longer it is exposed to the star-light, the more luminous points appear to travel on the plate. The faintest ones are probably so far away that no telescope we can imagine can ever disclose them to view.

Professor Ritchey showed some very beautiful photos of the Milky Way, both in a general view and in detail, photos of star clusters, and nebulae, the latter showing an apparent evolution into the spiral form; which he said, was the general form of all nebulae, and appeared to be the first stage in the formation of a new universe. The Milky Way is supposed to be a system by itself, and is the universe to which our sun with his planets belong; while the nebulae appear to constitute other systems, probably as extensive as the Milky Way, or perhaps larger, but so far away as to show us but small objects, no bigger than the moon to us. The learned lecturer explained the present theory of world-formation, starting with nebulae, condensing to suns and planetary systems which we may infer from the example of our solar system, to exist in countless millions in attendance on their central orb. The great factor in the evolution is the constant dissipation of heat by which the orbs contract and cool the smaller ones more quickly than the larger. As examples of the latter, we see the giant planets Jupiter, Saturn and probably Neptune still at red heat, while the former are represented by Mars, Mercury, Venus and our own moon. The earth seems to occupy a unique position in the series, as midway between the two extremes, and is the only planet in the solar system which appears at the stage capable of sustaining life. The moon, on the other hand, represents the last stage of all, cold, inert and lifeless, with no air or water, and where absolute silence reigns eternally. And it was therefore appropriate that the lecture conclude with some wonderful photos of the moon, showing its gigantic mountains and craters, the largest of the latter 164 miles across and sixteen thousand feet deep. They stood out on the canvas like a cameo, and to a spectator in the audience it appeared as if one might go to pick up the pieces of the moon.

These photos Professor Ritchey explained, were taken by him with the Yerkes telescope at Chicago. Prof. Ritchey showed also many photos of the trail up Mount Wilson, and revealing the difficulties encountered in transporting the great telescope to its station at the observatory. The lecturer explained also the arrangements which were being made for the reception and installation of the greater telescope of 100 inches diameter, and showed photos of the grinding apparatus now being erected at the solar observatory laboratory on Santa Barbara street, Pasadena, to which Professor Ritchey very cordially invited any one, who would care to see it.

Professor Ritchey is a fluent and even eloquent talker, and appears so full of his subject that his enthusiasm is evident, and that the lecture was communicated to the audience as well as attested by the fact that he was enabled to hold their close attention for over two hours on a subject which we must regretfully admit is as yet far from popular. We shall look forward with pleasurable anticipation to hearing Professor Ritchey, on a future occasion.

INCENTIVE TO INDUSTRIAL EFFORT UNDER SOCIALISM.

(Contributed)

Nothing is more improbable than that the applications of the principles of Socialism would impair or destroy the incentive of the individual to produce wealth. So well grounded is reason in the contention of Socialists that so far from the incentive of the individual being decreased, the incentive of the individual would be increased. Only a little consideration is required to demonstrate its probability to the point of absolute knowledge.

The man who has labored hard until old age has come upon him without ever having a dollar's worth of wealth that he has used as capital, is terribly alarmed when he learns that the private ownership of capital would be abolished under Socialism. This can only be explained on the theory that such man has no conception of the real purpose of Socialism. Socialism contains nothing that would impair, even over so slightly the right of an individual to own the house in which he lives or to till any particular piece of land so long as he might desire. On the contrary, Socialism would guarantee these rights, which exist now, in most cases only in theory.

But let us be more specific. And in order that the illustration may be so clear and simple that any fourth-grade school child may understand and that others cannot successfully gainsay, we will quote some figures and statements from Bulletin No. 48, 1903, issued by the bureau of labor at Washington. This report covering the period from 1890-1903 was based upon reports from 2567 families of five, none of whose income was above $1200 per year, there being two or more wage earners in each family. Bear in mind we have not selected the poorest class with but one wage earner to the family, whose average wage per year according to the census of 1900 was $437. The above report also shows that the average cost of living was $728 per year, showing a surplus per family per year of $465.

Now let us suppose that a man becomes a wage earner at the age of 21, continues until the age of 50 and hoards his annual earnings for 29 years, and lo and behold, the magnificent sum of $1595 has been accumulated.

Let us see what the incentive and result of similar effort under a regime of Socialism would be. We learn from the same source, government statistics, that the average wage of a producer is about $2.00 per day; the average productivity of a wage worker or producer, over $8.00 per day. In other words, the tailor, he who produces, receives less than one-fourth of that which he produces; the parasite fleches the remaining three-fourths which is a matter of over $15,000 per year per wage worker, all of which would be acquired by the one who actually produced it by the adoption of the Socialistic principles, which would eliminate the enormous waste of competition and the profits of private ownership. Does anyone think that it would be possible for one's incentive to have been retarded by such showing as the above, the reasoning and logic of which cannot be successfully disputed.

But perhaps you are one of those who do not care to be classed with the average, the rank and file. Possibly you not alone aspire but you accept the hackneyed phrase that "the young man of today has a better or at least as good a chance to rise as the young man ever had."

You are pursuing a will-o-the-wisp. Stop and consider. We have a population of about 100,000,000. We have about 10,000 millionaires. A score or even less of these captains of industry hold the destiny of this nation in their voracious Titan's grasp. They stop or start the life-blood, money, make or unmake panics at their sweet will. Where, oh where, young man, do you find opportunity knocking at your door under the present system.

What incentive would Socialism hold out to persons of special or unusual ability? Well, perhaps a Verdis would prefer to ball soap, or a Murillas to whitewash fences instead of painting their soul pictures on canvases; or an Edison would probably prefer to peddle clocks than to devote to the scientific mysteries for the benefit of humanity.

If musicians compose, sing and play because the divine harmonies wrapped up in their souls will not let them do otherwise; if artists paint and sculptors execute masterpieces and great executive minds organize and direct and the Edisons and Marconis delve into the bowels of the earth and soar the ethereal realms in order to satisfy the natural inclinations which consume them, body and soul; if these things be true—and average intelligence does not dispute the fact—then the mere accumulation of property, dollars is a mere delusion; the result of a diseased mind followed by its attendant train of evils, not alone to the masses, the wage workers, the producers, but to the pursuers, he who would find happiness through fame or a hoard of gold at the sacrifice of his breath and his own soul.

II.—Selection of Food.

By EDITH G. CHARLTON,

In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THE wise selection of food, to suit the individual needs of each member of the family, requires the consideration of at least these three questions:

1. Is the food nutritious?
2. Is the food comparatively easy to digest?
3. Is the food reasonable in cost?

The subject is so important that it should engage the heart and head as well as the hand of the woman who presides over a family. It is sufficiently important, too, to demand some thought from every individual who values his good health and general well being. It has been frequently stated by physicians and philanthropists that three-fourths of the sickness in the world, one-half the drunkenness and a large percentage of the crime have had their beginning and their cause in poor food and bad cooking. This being the case, can there be any topic of greater value for our lesson this week than the very old question, "What shall we eat?"

First I should like to impress upon my readers that "we eat to live" rather than "live to eat;" that, while there should be genuine pleasure in the simple act of eating, this pleasure ought to be experienced when the food is of simple variety. The pleasure is a certainty when the food has been carefully and appetizingly prepared and when hunger is a companion at the meal. The appetite which relishes only expensive foods and foods out of season is abnormal and is certain to bring disaster to its possessor. This disaster may be an attack of rheumatism or some form of dyspepsia, or it may be a depleted bank account.

What Food Is.

In order to fulfill its office food must either build and repair tissue or it must give heat and energy to the body, and it should do these things at as little unnecessary expense of physical energy as possible. According to its function all kinds of food are divided into five classes. These are the tissue building foods, the fat foods, starches and sugars, mineral matter and water. Each one of these classes has its particular duty to perform for the body and therefore has its special place on the daily bill of fare. Any food material, no matter how simple and well known or how rare, contains two or more of these five classes. A few of the standard materials contain all five classes.

For instance, what do we find in a loaf of bread? A great deal of starch and some gluten from the flour, a little fat from the flour and more if it has been added in the making, some mineral matter and about 35 per cent of water. Meat also has fat, mineral matter and a substance found in the lean part which is called protoid and which is the tissue building property of the meat. The elements which compose these different classes of food correspond with the elements in the body; hence their necessity. It is chiefly from the food which we eat that we obtain those elements which are necessary for the support of life and the functions of the body.

The Duty of the Five Classes.

Now that we have seen what an important place in life our daily food occupies let us endeavor to learn to which class or classes certain commonly used foods belong. The tissue building foods, or the protoid foods, are not numerous, but so important are they that life cannot be sustained for any length of time without them. This class of food has been given the name protoid, a word meaning "first" or "pre-eminent," because it alone of the five classes is able to build tissue and to repair the daily waste of the cells of the body. The protoids alone contain nitrogen, and nitrogen is one of the elements necessary to life. The following table classifies some of our common foods according to their principal constituents, also gives their source and use of the chief food constituents.

SOURCE AND USE OF THE CHIEF FOOD CONSTITUENTS.
PROTEIDS	Meats Fish Eggs Milk Cheese Peas Beans Gluten in Flour Butter Fat of Meats Cheese Oil in Nuts Olive Oil
FATS	Meats Fish Eggs Milk Cheese Peas Beans Gluten in Flour Butter Fat of Meats Cheese Oil in Nuts Olive Oil
CARBOHYDRATES	Sugars Starch
MINERAL SALTS	Fruit Acids Vegetables In All Vegetables In All Animal Foods
WATER	Fruit Acids Vegetables In All Vegetables In All Animal Foods

The sugars and starches have been grouped under one name, carbohydrates, because both these foods contain a considerable amount of carbon, also two gases, hydrogen and oxygen, which are always present in the right proportion to form water. The special function of this class of food is to give energy. Before energy is evolved there must be heat, but as heat produces the carbohydrates are not as valuable as fats. The latter are more than three-fourths carbon. This fact at once proves that fat in some form is the food to be eaten when heat is required. It is the food which appeals to the appetite more strongly in winter than in summer and is liked better in cold climates than in warm. If it were impossible to have both fat and sugar in the diet no great harm would result to the body for some time, because both contain the same elements and both perform the same function—namely, give heat and energy. Not so with the protoids, however, because, being the only class which contains nitrogen, no other can substitute for them.

Danger in Overeating.

After learning of the importance of protoid foods the first conclusion may be that they should form the greater part of the diet and should largely compose the daily bill of fare. This is a common mistake and one to be carefully avoided. The intake of food should not be greater than the needs of the body and to preserve its normal equilibrium. Too much food of any kind necessitates too much work on the organs of digestion and elimination and produces certain irregularities of the body functions. Too much protoid—that is, too liberal an allowance of meat, fish, eggs, cheese, etc., in the meals will clog the system with urea, throw too much work on the kidneys in their effort to carry off this final product in the digestion of protoid. Too much protoid in the diet induces rheumatism and similar disorders. When too much fat, or carbohydrate, is eaten it is stored up in the body as fat, and the individual finds himself putting on adipose tissue to perhaps an uncomfortable degree. There is more danger in this country from overeating than there is from lack of food, just as the engine is likely to wear out more quickly because of too hard firing than from lack of fuel.

The amount of food required to properly develop the body and keep it in normal condition depends on different conditions, such as the occupation of the individual, the age of the individual, sex, climate and personal idiosyncrasies.

The man or woman engaged in hard physical work requires more of the foods which repair tissues than does the person living a sedentary life. The amount of fresh air in which the individual lives will also determine largely the rapidity with which food will be oxidized in the body. For instance, the farmer, working in the fields, will require more nourishing foods than the man who sits in his office all day. The farmer's lungs are constantly filled with fresh air; his blood is filled with oxygen. He is performing work which requires much physical energy; hence his food is rapidly burned in his body in order to yield the necessary energy, and he is hungry. He has a good appetite for hearty food, and he digests it with ease. The man of sedentary habits finds his stomach rebelling and himself in general discomfort if he attempts to follow the example of the farmer for any length of time.

How Much to Eat.

Occasionally we hear the question, "How much should we eat?" Yet, as a rule, the average person does not trouble himself very much on that score and eats what a pampered appetite demands rather than the amount he actually needs. Dietary specialists have found from many experiments that an average man doing average work requires each day about four and a half ounces of protoid, two ounces of fat and sixteen ounces of carbohydrate. An average woman doing the work of an average housekeeper requires a little less, probably about three and a half ounces of protoid, one and a half ounces of fat and twelve ounces of carbohydrate. The boy fourteen to sixteen years of age requires four-fifths as much food as his father, and the boy or girl of twelve years should have half as much food as an adult. Recently certain specialists have been able to reduce the amount of protoid still lower than the above standards, which are less than those given ten or twelve years ago. But as long as the present habit of "bolting" food with insufficient mastication is common in the country it is not safe to reduce the amount of protoid to the lowest possible figure. The amount of food constituents which I have suggested can be easily obtained from standard food materials; less of these will be required if the foods are properly cooked. Just here the housekeeper's skill is called into account. No matter how nutritious and easy of digestion foods may be in their uncooked state, they may be almost, if not entirely, ruined as far as digestion and assimilation are concerned in the process of cooking.

A single portion of beefsteak, two eggs and an ounce of cheese, with milk and a little oatmeal, will furnish all the tissue building material the average man will require for one day. A half loaf of bread and a half pound of potatoes, with ordinary helping of rice and a tablespoonful of sugar will furnish the required amount of carbohydrate, and the required fat is easily obtained from the butter used on the bread, the oils in the cheese and the fat in meat. There is much more chance of too much fat being eaten with the ordinary meal than too little.

We are likely to undervalue the value of water in the diet and use it too sparingly. Water is a food and a very necessary one. Its duties for the body are numerous and important. It helps to carry food to the blood, assists in carrying off the waste matters, equalizes the temperature of the body and acts as solvent for food. Its benefits to the system are many.

A Collector's Bargain.
Lord Spencer of Althorp, one of the greatest of book collectors, was at home only in his own field. One day in browsing about Bond street, London, he went into the shop of a dealer in bric-a-brac. The dealer, who knew him by sight, said persuasively:
"Here is a fine bit of pottery which your lordship really ought to have, and you shall have it very cheap—only 2 guineas."
So Lord Spencer bought it and took it home and set it in a high place. One day a connoisseur of china paid him a visit, and Lord Spencer showed his bargain.
"What did you give for it?" asked the connoisseur.
"Two guineas," answered Spencer rather proudly.
"H'm," said the connoisseur. "At that price the marmalade should have been included."
"What do you mean?"
"Why, that precious piece of yours is nothing more or less than a shilling marmalade pot with a green thistle painted on it."

Silencing the Questioners.
A French gentleman who had been with M. de Talleyrand for twenty years accompanied him to the congress at Vienna after Napoleon's exile to Elba. People naturally concluded that this long intimacy had made him familiar with a number of particulars of the minister's life and bearing also upon the events with which he had been mixed up. Worried with questions, the friend invariably replied that he knew nothing, but the questioners would not be satisfied and returned to the charge.
"Very well," finally said Talleyrand's confidant; "I'll tell you a peculiar and altogether unknown fact in connection with M. de Talleyrand. Since Louis XV. he's the only man who can open a soft-boiled egg with one backward stroke of his knife without spilling a drop of the contents of the shell. That is the only peculiarity I know in connection with him."
Discretion had scored a decisive victory. From that moment the questions ceased.

The Sting of Ingratitude.
A young physician in the east side, New York city, spends much time in charitable practice, says the Newark Star. In fact, he sometimes gives to a poor patient enough money to pay for prescriptions. "I'm not getting rich," he explains, "but I simply can't see them suffer for medicines that may put them on their feet again."
Not many days ago the doctor had occasion to visit a woman who occupied one small tenement room with her three children. After making out a prescription he gave her $2, telling her to buy the medicine and to use the change for needed food. On the following day as he was about to enter the tenement for a second call he met the ten-year-old daughter of the patient.
"How is your mother?" he inquired of the child.
"Oh, she's all well!" was the answer. "She took the $2 and got a real doctor."

When to Stop Advertising.
An English journal requested a number of the largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:
When the population ceases to multiply and the generation that crowded on after you and never heard of you stops coming on.
When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.
When you stop making fortunes solely through the direct use of this mighty agent.
When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up.
When you would rather have your own way and fall than take advice and win.—Nashville American.

The Ingenious Magpie.
The magpie is nothing if not ingenious. He always barricades his bulky nest with thorn branches, so that to plunder it is by no means an easy matter, but when circumstances oblige the "pie" to build in a low bush or hedge, an absence of lofty trees being a marked feature of some northern localities, he not only interlaces his home, but also the entire bush, in a most formidable manner. Nor does he stop here. To "make assurance double sure" he fashions a means of exit as well as an entrance to the castle, so that if disturbed he can slip out by his back door, as it were.—London Graphic.

John and the Franchise.
A woman suffrage lecturer in England recently brought down the house with the following argument: "I have no vote, but my groom has. I have a great respect for that man in the stables, but I am sure if I were to go to him and say, 'John, will you exercise the franchise?' he would reply, 'Please, rum, which horse be that?'"

A Real Regret.
Editor—I am obliged to decline your poem with thanks. I am very sorry, but—Poet—But what? Editor—The management insists upon my declining all poems that way.

Elevating.
Wigg—The man who loves a woman can't help being elevated. Wagg—And the man who loves more than one is apt to be sent up too.—Philadelphia Record.

The superior man is satisfied and composed; the mean man is always full of distress.—Confucius.

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY MEETING.

A meeting of the Glendale and Vicinity Improvement association was held at K. of P. hall last Friday evening. Over 100 persons were in attendance, a good proportion of ladies being among them. Reports of various committees were received and several subjects of interest were discussed, among others the storm water question which was presented by Mr. H. P. Coker. The question of annexation or consolidation of Glendale and surrounding territory however, Mr. O. A. Lane who is an ardent advocate of consolidation and a Greater Glendale, made the principal address of the evening. Mr. A. M. Watson of Tropic discussed as an expert, the taxation phase of the problem, giving some interesting figures bearing upon the subject.

Mr. Harry Lynch, manager of the Glendale electric light plant, gave an interesting account of the progress of the work. Mr. J. C. Sherer, being called upon, gave a brief talk on the annexation question. The speakers all favored a larger municipality; calls were made for an expression of opinion from those present from outside territory and opposed to coming into the corporation, but no one responded. The association adjourned to meet in regular session on Friday evening, March 25th.

Only three or four of them were armed, the majority being winter tourists attracted hither by the fame of our orange groves and climate. Mrs. Thompson is reported almost recovered from the assault, the perpetrator of which has not been discovered.

Pepper trees along Central avenue and along Cypress and Glendale avenues have been trimmed to such an extent that they are now practically worthless as far as shade and beauty are concerned. A vacant space would add more to the attractiveness of the street than do these mutilated stumps.
